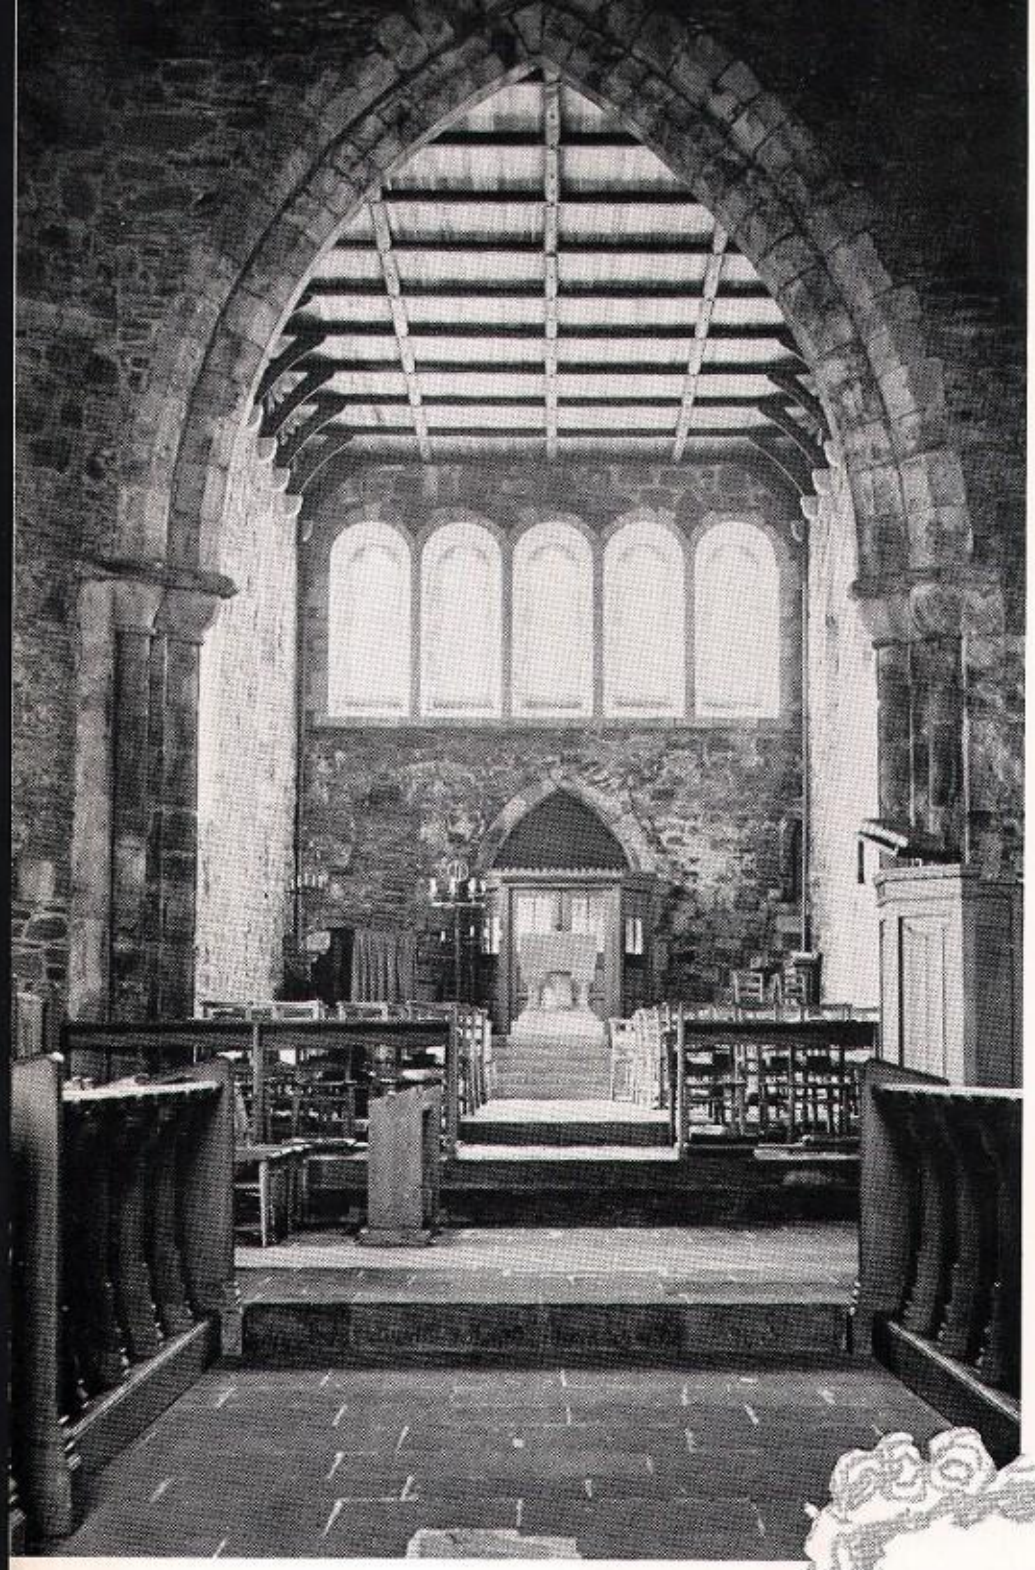
Iona



DEDICATION

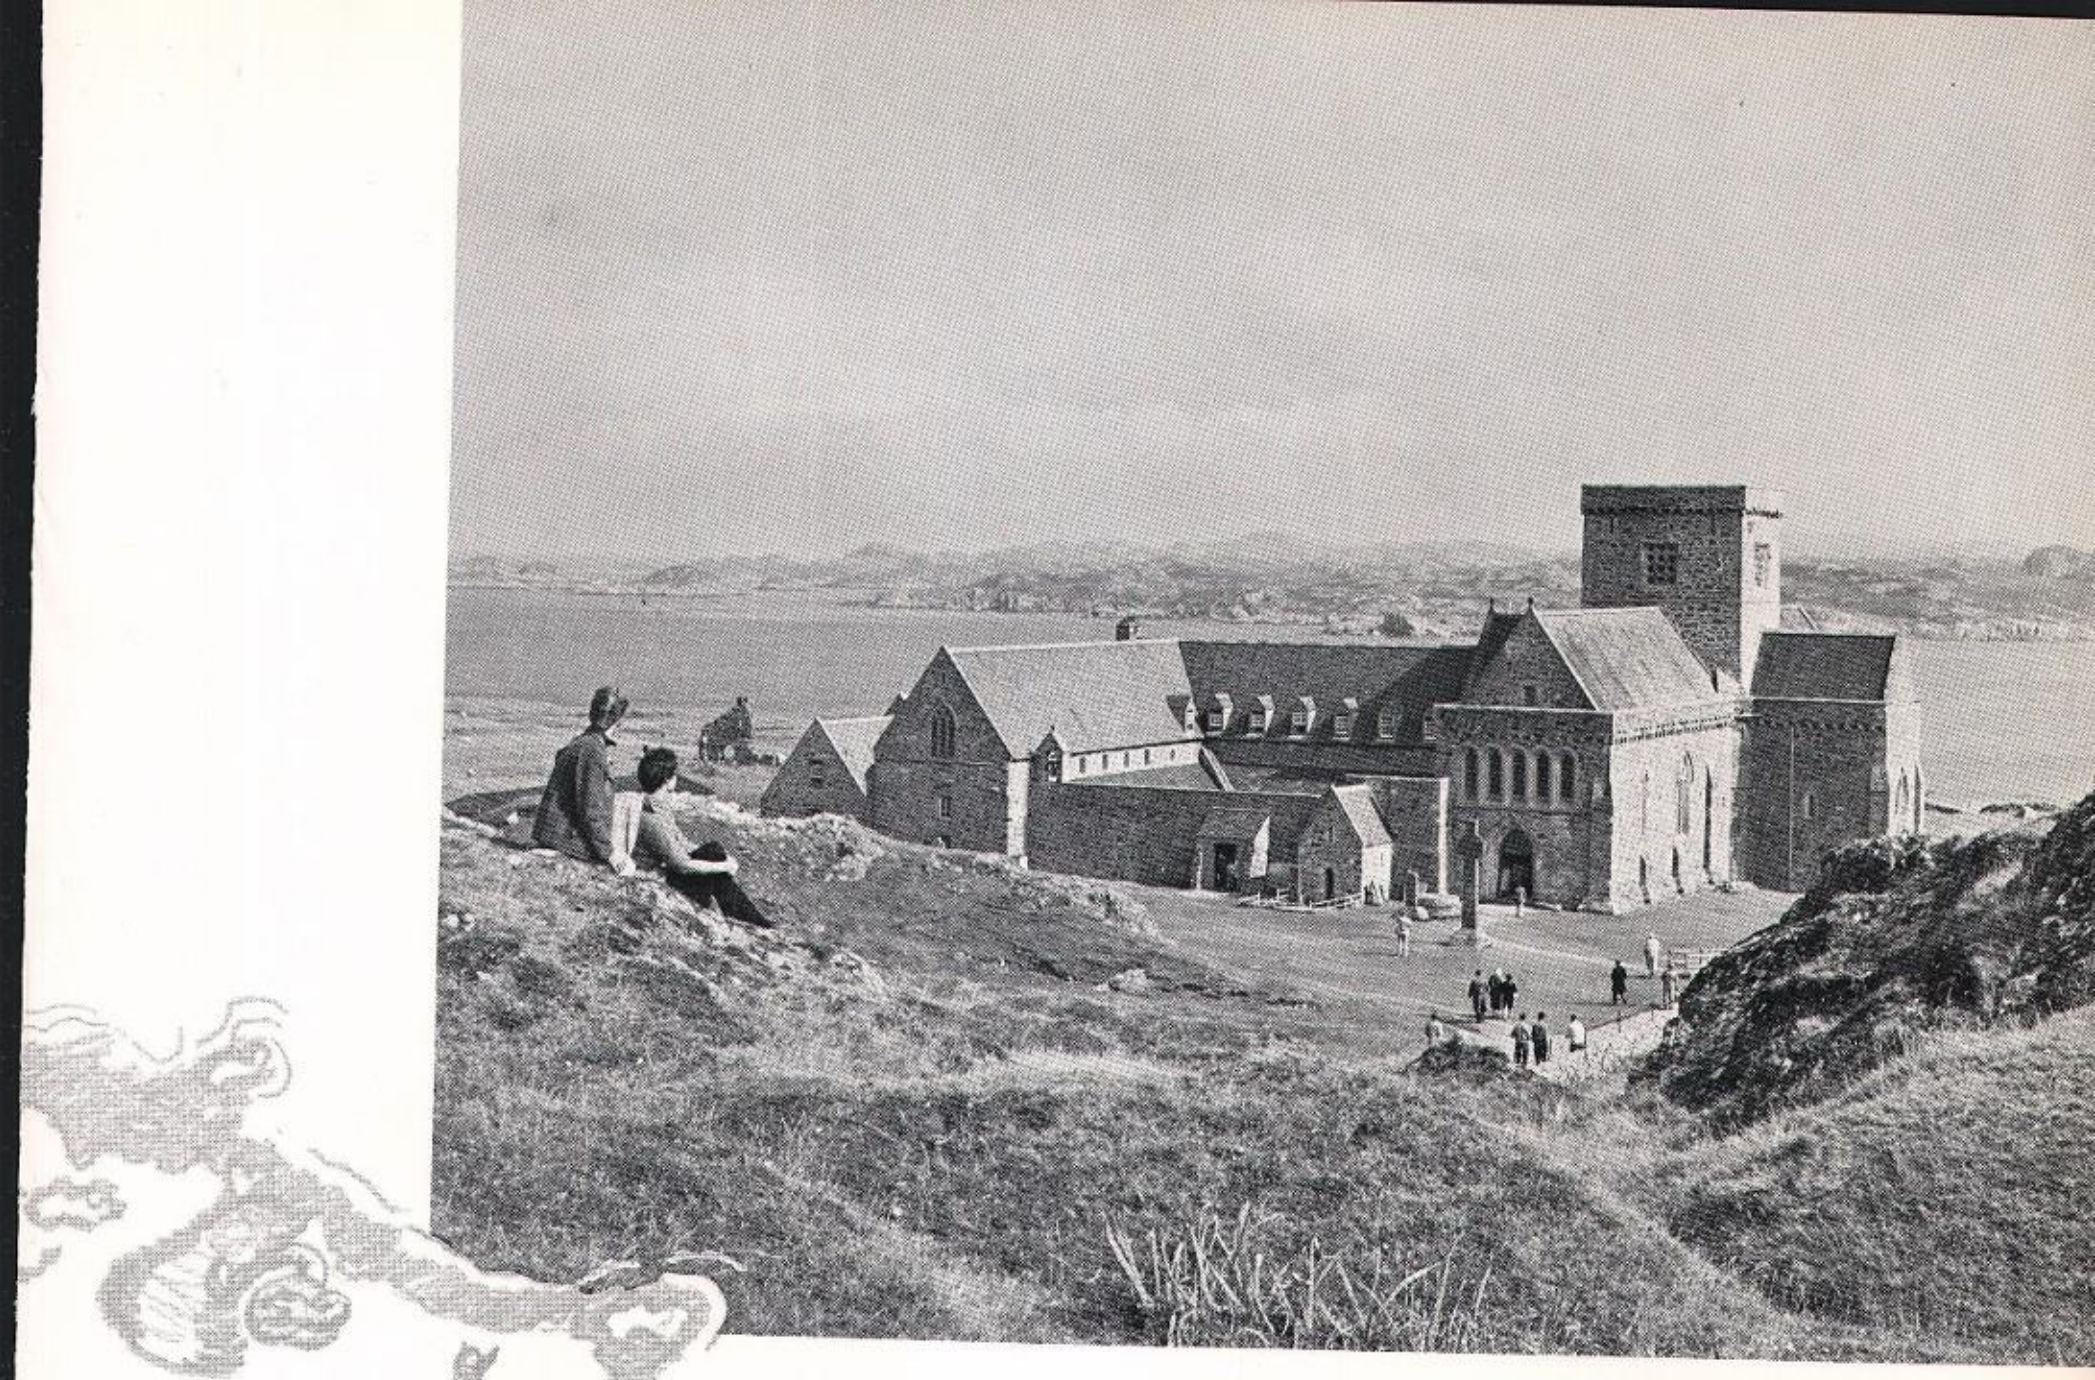
Two thousand miles to the east of Iona College lies the peaceful but rugged isle of Iona. Some fourteen hundred years ago, a band of twelve monks, led by the holy Columba, threaded its way northeastward on the tempestuous North Atlantic to establish a monastery at this remote place. Iona then was, and for several hundred years previous had been, a center of Druid worship. With the advent of Columba, it became an outpost of the Christianity which was to so decisively influence the history of the British Isles.

Columba was born in 521, and was heir to the throne in Northern Ireland; but, this he abandoned for the monastic life. After studying under St. Finnian, Columba was ordained in 551, and became well known for his devotion and piety. He travelled extensively throughout Ireland, establishing numerous churches and monasteries. In 563 he became involved in a dispute concerning a copyright, which resulted in the death of three thousand men in the Battle of Coleraine. Legend relates that Columba was directed to go into exile, and would be allowed to return only after he had converted as many souls to Christianity as had been lost in this battle. St. Aidan, a more reliable biographer of Columba, attributes his journey to his excessive missionary zeal.

At the Iona Abbey the monks diligently pursued the fusion of all material and spiritual values. The emphasis of the Celtic Church on the oneness of all can be seen as being influential in Columba's life. His explicit directions were to convert Scotland and the pagan Saxons. As a poet and as an outstanding scholar, the abbot of Iona accentuated to a high degree the role of the spiritual in the lives of his brethren. His statesmanlike policies helped to set up the Kingdom of the Scots, with Aidan as its ruler. The lineal descendant of this throne presently occupies the royal chair of Great Britain.

For two hundred years after the death of Columba the monastic activities of Iona declined as waves of Viking plunderers devastated the island and martyred the monks. Since its sixth century prominence in things spiritual and intellectual, the island has remained as a shrine of inspiration. Columba prophesied the decline of Iona. Yet a new Iona was to take its place, for its spirit outlived its material appurtenances.

It is to St. Columba and to the missionary zeal of Iona that we dedicate the 1964 ICANN.



THEME

How simple it is to speak of molding minds and affecting eternity. Education is often reduced to impassioned platitudes of golden pasts and rose-tinted futures. Yet the feeling and occasional flashes of exultation that accompany the lone, immediate insight into the nature of a novel, or the thought of a great thinker, or the sense of something historic must be considered only as foretastes when the same discoveries are charged by another mind—be it student or teacher.

Sensitive guidance, scholarly example, and stalwart endeavor mark Iona's intellectual and spiritual stance. The ancient questioning attitude that brings wisdom and youth into harmony and sometimes discord is the watershed of Iona. The answer to the perennial questions—Why teacher? Why student?—lies in the two of it, not the one; the answer lies in the conjugality of two minds and their offspring—knowledge, beauty, and happiness.

From one end of the campus to the other, news of President Kennedy's shooting was heard in stunned disbelief. Then the shock wore off and in its place welled up feelings of grief and disgust for the act.

In the crowded cafeteria the news broke in upon animated chatter and stilled all conversation. Gloom fell over the tables and the meals were left uneaten or finished in silence.

On the athletic field students stopped playing football and asked each other:

"Is it true?"

All over campus, groups of students and teachers gathered around radios, their faces drawn and ashen.

Within minutes of the word of the assassination, students started drifting into the chapel, first in twos and threes, and then in tens and twenties. At first they prayed for the president's recovery. Then, when they learned he was dead, they prayed for the salvation of his soul.

BOARD OF

The Board of Lay Trustees of Iona College consists of thirty-eight members. These laymen act as liaison between the college and the general public and provide Iona with an experienced counseling group on business matters. Further assistance is rendered by them in procuring funds for the development program of the college as well as for specific capital improvements, scholarships, endowments and other purposes. The Board also endeavors to attract the most talented students for its scholarship program and interpret the aims, objectives, and philosophy of education for the public in the area in which the college serves.

RATION

IONA COLLEGE

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

To The Graduates of 1964:

Your graduation from college is a great moment in your life. It is also a great moment in the life of Iona College. This serious and solemn occasion commits you to duties and relationships which will last as long as life itself. This is the beginning of a life in which you achieve new stature, test your standards in the market-place, dedicate your talents to the goals planned.

To be a college graduate comes with it obligations you cannot escape; indeed, should you wish to escape them then you are not a college graduate, you merely attended college. You are obligated to a lifelong search for truth, a lifelong love of learning, a lifelong concern for ideas and ideals.

You are also committed to a continued loyalty to Iona. From now on you will be identified with Iona to a much greater degree; Iona will be judged by you, as any college is judged by the quality of its human product. The test of your successful college education is to be found in your appetite to know, in your determination to continue learning, and in your ability to think and act maturely.

From your very nature you will have to choose between the good and the better, between the essential and the accidental, capable of substantiating all your decisions by the directive force and the objective aids offered through the Christian orientation of your knowledge and natural powers.

Remember always that yours is a deeper and more significant goal than material security and prosperity, despite their importance. Your aim, after your years at Iona, is a Christian humanism born of the Incarnation of the Son of God; a humanism adequate to the designs of God. You will reach your goal by growing in faith, hope and charity toward the full stature of Christian manhood, consecrated in the growing perfection of all your human powers of mind and will to the service of God and man, in Christ.

Sincerely,

Iona Alumni Association

The Iona College Alumni Association, since the first graduating class of 1944, has grown to more than five thousand in number. The Association sponsors several events of social and spiritual nature throughout the year, such as its Annual Mass and Communion Breakfast in April, its autumn Basketball Game and Reunion, and the Annual Alumni Banquet. This last event is held approximately one week after commencement in June, so that not only is it a time for reunions of anniversary classes, but a rousing welcome to the members of the newly-graduated class into the organization.

The Banquet, held on June 13th, was attended by more than 500 persons, and included special anniversary reunions for the classes of 1953 and 1958. Iona College Alumni Day was proclaimed by the cities of New York, New Rochelle, and the County of Westchester. The Brother William Cornelia Founders Award was presented to Brother Edmond R. Kiely.

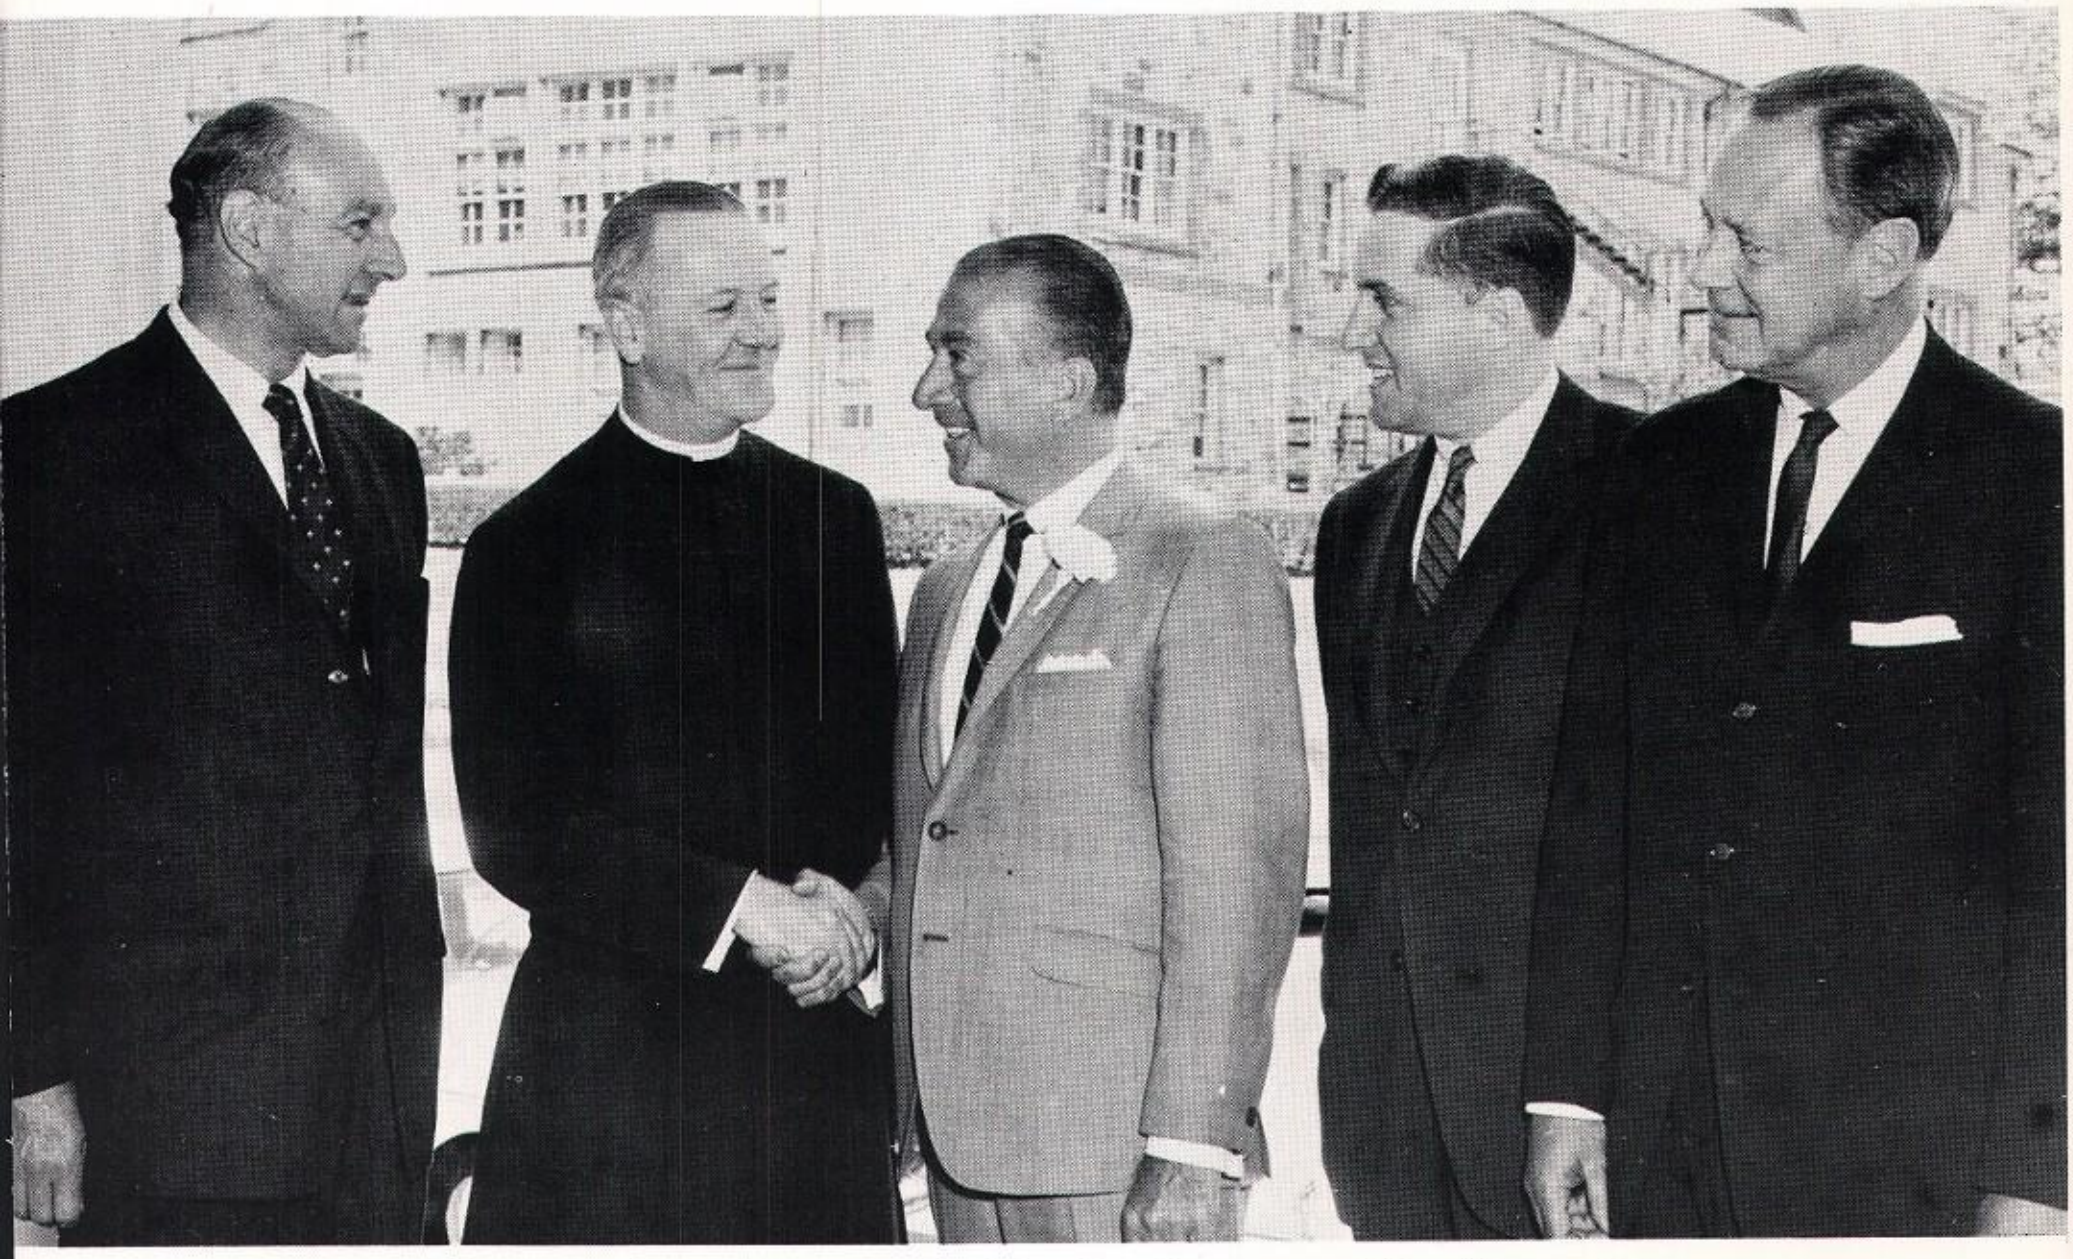
The alumni of Iona show visible evidence of their faith in and fidelity to their Alma Mater in their annual contributions to the Alumni Loyalty Fund, which has grown in size since its inception in 1960. The year 1963 saw more than three dozen members enrolled in the Loyalty Fund Century Club, a sharp increase over previous years.

The Officers and Directors of the Alumni Association are: Robert L. Vizet, '49; Joseph F. Burns, '51; John F. McFadden, '49; John P. Jensen, '51; Edward J. Cushing, '57, Treasurer; Hon. Joseph R. Pisani, '50, President; Neil R. Cronin, '53; Brian E. Maher, '53; Albert J. Sattler, '58, Secretary; Dr. James J. O'Connell, '52; Bro. Joseph G. McKenna, Administration Representation.

The Alumni Association, which has its permanent headquarters in the Administration Building, and whose office is opened for all alumni to visit at any time, mails its regularly published newspaper, "The Iona Alumnus," free of charge to all graduates of Iona. Every two years general elections for officerships are accomplished by a mail ballot, so that all alumni, no matter where they are located, may vote. The Executive Director of the Association is Mr. John P. Jensen, '51, while Rev. Bro. Joseph G. McKenna is the Administration Representative to the Alumni Association. Father James J. Corrigan, '51 serves as Association Chaplain.

Geographical and special interest chapters have been formed, so that there are at present Alumni Chapters in Chicago and Long Island (Nassau and Suffolk Counties), as well as an Educators' Chapter and an Advertising Chapter. The Alumni extend a warm welcome to the Class of '64, with best wishes for the future.

At the Alumni Dinner: Hon. Joseph R. Pisani, Donald H. McGannon, John P. Jensen, Peter Lind Hayes, H. Douglas Bererdo, and Hon. Donald J. Sullivan.



Following the Alumni Communion Breakfast, Bro. Power congratulates Congressman Paul Fino while Edward Michaelian, Joseph Pisani, and Mayor Stanley W. Church look on.

The Class of '53 at the Alumni Re-Union.

Hon. Joseph R. Pisani
President

John P. Jensen
Executive Director

Iona College, its alumni, and the world experienced a tragic loss on November 22, 1963. John Fitzgerald Kennedy, thirty-fifth President of the United States, belonged, in a sense, to Iona, as no other President had. While he was still the junior senator from Massachusetts, the late President had been awarded, at a special convocation on September 19, 1957, an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. As the program of the occasion stated, "Rarely have so many admirable qualities been combined in the character of one man. He has displayed on all occasions and in every arena the highest courage and determination, motivated by his profound Catholic faith and inspired patriotism." Ionamen will continue to be inspired by him, and will miss him.

Each fall, the Cornelian Honor Society "unanimously and with the approval of the Dean" nominates Iona's representatives to Who's Who. The nominees are chosen on the basis of outstanding leadership in academic achievement, demonstrated loyalty and service to Iona College and seasoned participation in extra-curricular activities.

In the premier edition the purpose of the publication and the society it formed was explained as follows: "To create one national basis of recognition for college students that would be democratic and devoid of dues, initiation fees, or other cost to the student."

Religious Activities

As a Catholic institution, Iona College has as one of its primary objectives the formation of the true and perfect Christian. It aims to achieve this by imparting the knowledge essential to a liberal education and supplements this knowledge with an active religious program. It is a fundamental belief held at Iona that religious training provides not only for a better temporal life, but also leads to the fulfillment of man's eternal destiny.

ICANN 1964

THOMAS C. CUNNIFFE
Editor-in-Chief

Our objective in the 1964 Icann is to portray with the fidelity of the camera lens and the artistry of the printed word the every day routine of Iona College: the tension of exams, the excitement and glamour of an all-school dance, the wild, but orderly madness of a basketball game; the church-like silence of the noon angelus, the warm glow of friendship in a classmate's greeting, the sound of a footstep that echoes down a deserted corridor after five. These scenes and sounds we hope have been captured in this year's Icann.

Our success in publishing a true pictorial representation of life at Iona is due to the efforts of many. For his guidance and devotion we thank our moderator, Brother Michael F. Bradley; for his advice and excellent service we thank Mr. Edwin Weidlich of the Photo-Reflex Studios; for their cooperation we thank the Administration, the faculty, and the various campus organizations; and finally, for his untiring efforts, we thank our printer, Mr. J. Pessah.

The Ionian

Although this year's Ionian cannot be looked upon as the stalwart exemplar of stability, it has represented that spark of the Pulitzer spirit in its attempt to strike a balance between supplying information and monitoring controversy. With a small staff that at times dwindled to within an inch of its journalistic life, the paper attempted to be an organ of student news and views while finding facets and features that would widen the reading base of the paper.

For the Ionian staff, the experience of putting the paper out was one marked by late hours, approaching deadlines, and an inestimable feeling of comradery in the knowledge that improvement was constantly being made.

James Coogan
President

This year the write-up submitted for the Student Council, by said Council, reports in the first paragraph that Iona's body for student government "has accomplished a great deal in the legislation, co-ordination and promotion of all campus activities." The remainder of their copy, however, is, for the most part, factual.

The Council could boast of the greatest number of committees—fifteen—in the history of Iona. Among these was the Student Interest Committee, better known as SIC (one wonders if there is any deeper significance in this acronym). Under the direction of Kevin Duff, its primary concern was the investigation of the various problems and complaints brought before the Council by students.

Officers: Ed Sears, Recording Secretary; Ken Morris, Vice President; Jim Scanlon, Treasurer; Jim Coogan, President; Richard Biondi, Corresponding Secretary.

Senior Representatives: Ken Morris and George Jonic (sitting); Guy Zummo, Vincent Foley, Nick Branca, Tom Shea, Jim Coogan (standing).

The Spirit Committee, better known as Spirit Com, chaired by Paul "instant zeal" Miklus, was most successful in establishing a fervent "fighting" spirit among the students, and in making of itself a cacaphonous nuisance through "pep" rallies, motorcades, and cheerleading.

One of the less pleasant Council tasks this year, the enforcement of regulations on parking which included a senior privilege, was delegated to the Parking Committee, better known as the Parking Committee. Under the direction of Guy Zummo and James Altomare, the Council cops undertook "the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

The rogues gallery of Council officers consisted of seniors James (El Supremo) Coogan and Kenneth Morris as President and Vice-President; junior James (last of the big time spenders) Scanlon as Treasurer; sophomores Richard Biondi and Edward Sears as Corresponding and Recording Secretaries.

Sophomore Representatives: Henry MacCormick, Dick Moley, Bud Miklus, Ed Sears, Ken Gray, John Tardibuono, and Joe Kennedy.

With a goal of helping Catholic students both home and abroad in areas of scholastic or professional difficulty, the National Federation of Catholic College Students once again completed a successful year of service. As part of a nationwide organization dedicated to the assistance of its members, the representation at Iona College participated in a variety of activities devoted to the fulfillment of this goal. Included in this program was a study of high school dropouts and what methods may be used to alleviate this area of conflict. The group also sponsored such features as spiritual formation of members, study circles and lectures, increased participation in college life, social events, publications, collaborations with national organizations and more importantly, apostolic activities of the local chapter. Recognizing its responsibility as a society whose obligation rests in its ability to provide assistance to its members, in whatever field they require, the N.F.C.C.S. at Iona gave to the College an important asset in its position as a Catholic institution in a world requiring a greater Catholic involvement.

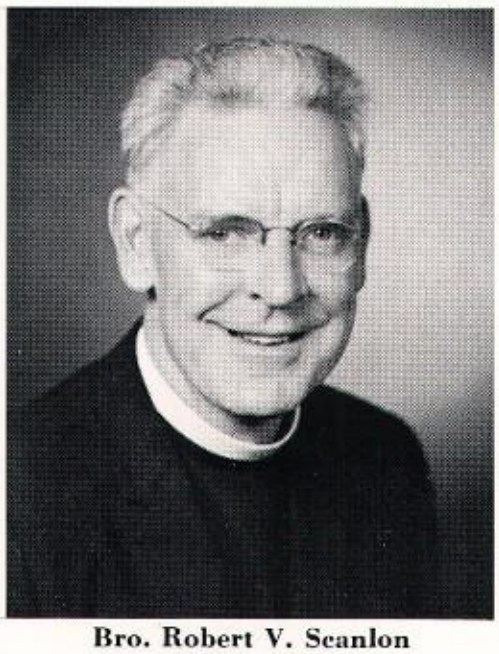
Legion of Mary



Bro. Robert V. Scanlon
Moderator

The Legion of Mary is one of the most active Catholic lay organizations in the world today. Having for its purpose the sanctification of its members and those with whom it comes in contact. The organization has always maintained that the seed of personal sacrifice, fertilized by the Holy Spirit through the Blessed Mother, yields the fruit of personal sanctification.

Iona's Praesidium, Mother Most Admirable, maintained a full schedule of activities during the school year. Its work included the operation of a pamphlet and magazine rack in the cafeteria, the propagation of continuous student adoration to the Blessed Sacrament, and the recitation of the Rosary in the Chapel for the success of the Ecumenical Council and later for the repose of the soul of the late John F. Kennedy. The most significant undertaking of the Praesidium this year was the development of a release time instruction program for public school students in New Rochelle. This work has attracted many new members to the Legion.

Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary

The Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary is a world-wide association of Catholic laity dedicated to personal sanctification and apostolic activity. At the weekly meeting of the Iona Sodality, members are stimulated to fulfill their spiritual obligations, discuss current problems facing the Church, and organize and direct the religious activities sponsored by the Sodality.

On the campus, the Sodality encourages meaningful participation at the daily Mass offered for the student body, and sponsors the annual Eastern Rite Liturgy. In addition to inviting various faculty speakers to address the club, the members have also engaged in ecumenical discussions for consideration of the question of Church unity.

In an age when the Church encourages and expects the layman to assume his role in the Body of Christ, the Iona College Sodality tries to foster the development of an educated and active laity.

Knights of Tara

Tara president, Nick Branca, receives thanks from basketball coach Jim McDermott for the party held in honor of the team.

As the service organization of Iona College, the Knights of Tara experienced a most active year. The activities of the club were greatly extended. In addition to ushering at the school plays, the Glee Club concerts, club affairs, religious activities, and the commencement exercises, the club this year served as a reception committee for prospective freshmen, helped at the annual blood drive, and assisted the patients at St. Vincent's Hospital in Harrison.

Tara Knights also played host to boys and girls from a nearby orphanage at Tara's annual Christmas party, where gifts were distributed, and the children had the run of the campus.

This year also saw the initiation of the Tara Knights Chapel Fund. A minimum of $100 a year will be donated each year by the society to a fund which the college may draw upon for the needs of Iona's chapel.

Socially, the society sponsored the Welcome Home Dance and the 18th Annual Winter Formal. Throughout the year, the members of the society exemplified their motto "Let friendship flourish through good deeds" by participating in many of the college's religious, intellectual, and social functions.

They present lectures and discussions, play Gaelic football with neighboring colleges and universities, and this year they once again sponsored a concert by the Clancy Brothers.

Following the literary ideals of the great Irish authors, the society also published The Gaelic Review and provided the Ionian with material for its annual St. Patrick's Day edition.

A fitting climax to the year's activity was the club's participation in the St. Patrick's Day Parade, at which time Iona's Sons of Erin exhibited their true Gaelic spirit.

Continuing its outstanding tradition as a successful cultural organization, El Club Espanol Hermano Pakenham concluded a year of discussions and lectures dealing with the language, history, and tradition of Spain. An important feature of its activities was its utilization of club meetings designed to foster a better understanding of Spanish. Several discussions were devoted to the culture and customs of Spain itself. Regarding these efforts, the society received favorable comments in its desire to present to its members a clearer image of the importance of Spanish as a language and as a culture. In addition to its efforts in this field, the organization also sponsored several religious and social events for the benefit of its members in particular and the student body in general.

The German Club endeavors each year to mutate the Iona campus by instilling it with Germanic culture and the spirit of the Rhine. In a Hegelian sense no synthesis has occurred, nor have the undergraduates shed any tears over the predicament of Faust.

The club scheduled several lectures during the year; and, in the spring semester, the customary Language Day was held in conjunction with the other language clubs. The club was also unable to navigate itself clear of any Teutonic idolatry, and with the help of the Rhine maidens, it scheduled the Autumn Leaves Dance.

Mr. Charles Koozman of the New York State Conservative Party speaks in Ryan Library.

The Iona Conservative Club, established in the Spring of 1962, continued its program of presenting to its members a clearer understanding of the principles of Conservatism in American politics. Incorporating a series of lectures and discussions with its presentations, the club proposed its basic aims of fostering a better understanding of national affairs, dedicating its members to the preservation of freedom in the United States of America and throughout the world and promoting libertarian ideals of limited government, economics freedom, and individual liberty.

Among its list of distinguished speakers, the club presented Kieran O'Dougherty, who discussed the role of conservatism in national affairs, and Mr. Daniel Regan of the Philosophy Dept. at Iona, who considered "The Philosophy of the 1960 Elections." Throughout its activities the club maintained its position as a defender of conservatism, as a vital force in America, and a society whose ideals, although at times challenged, were always recognizable.

Iona Players

The Iona Players seek to complement Catholic education by presenting plays for the development of proficiency in playwriting, acting, directing, set designing, and to promote thespian culture among the students. The Players produce a drama in the fall, a classic at mid-year, and a musical in the spring. This year a Children's Theater has been added to the standard schedule.

The autumnal forte was the production of Othello, the first venture by the group into the world of Shakespearean tragedy. The play was marked by enthusiastic performances, sumptuous costuming, and technical surety, and achieved something more than a reading of lines.

The mid-year offering was Racine's Phaedra, produced by the Players and adequately directed by Paul Poggiali of the Classical Society. The actors saw the profundity of the play's conflict and responded intelligently. The total effect, however, was one of having seen a play almost achieve a viable unity. For the unfulfilled potential there was regret; for the successful passages there was praise.

By far the more successful production of the year was the spring musical, West Side Story, which surpassed all previous ventures both on the boards and before them.

"Pete, you and Paul can stay but one of us Mary's has got to go!"

"Yeah! . . . Yeah! . . . Yeah!"

The Glee Club affords its members the opportunity to participate in the presentation of choral music of the highest quality. Under the guidance and leadership of its moderator, Brother Mark J. Hunt, its director, Mr. James B. Welch, and its president, Oreste J. Persico, the Glee Club has developed into one of the most popular choral groups in the Metropolitan area.

The highlight of the first semester was the Annual Christmas Concert, in which the Iona Glee Club was joined by the Glee Club of Marymount College, Arlington, Virginia. The program consisted of combined traditional and classical pieces, a selection of folk songs, and the finale, Charpentier's Te Deum. During the second semester, the Glee Club gave concerts at Elizabeth Seton and Mercy Colleges, as well as at numerous community functions. During April the club travelled to Newport and performed at Salve Regina College.

The season's activities were brought to a close on May 9, when the Iona Glee Club and the Glee Club of the College of New Rochelle combined their musical talents for the Annual Spring Concert. This affair was highly acclaimed and provided a fitting climax for the entire season's efforts.

With a membership that includes students from sixteen different lands, the International Society is a virtual United Nations on campus. This year, in fulfilling its purpose of promoting a greater understanding among foreign students, the society sponsored a variety of cultural and social activities.

The organization's activities included the second annual Calymba Fiesta, discussions on international affairs, and lectures on the culture of various nations. The highlight of the year was the selection of a member of the club as a participant in a seminar sponsored by the Foreign Student Service Council on The Separation of Power in the United States Government.

Lannon Forensic Council

The Lannon Forensic Council for the first time in its history commenced this year with a full schedule of both varsity and novice debate tournaments. After attending the fall conference of the New York State Debate Association at Colgate University, the team opened the season with a novice tournament at City College, where the yearlings took five of ten awards (including that of best overall team). Next, the fledglings competed at Wagner College and took six of fifteen awards. The first semester reached an apex in the novice division by a prominent showing in the Temple University Tournament. The team tied for first place with a 7-1 record, losing only to a strong La Salle team.

The varsity, hampered by cancelled tournaments, was able to gather around the debate table only twice. They competed in the Queens College Tournament in November and the Eastern Forensic Association Tournament at St. Peters in December. At Queens, the squad won impressively over the University of New Hampshire, Navy, Bowdoin, Wagner, and Lincoln, losing ignominiously to Scranton, Union, and Howard.

Although the team compiled only a 5-5 record in the E.F.A. championships, the contest was highlighted by an Iona victory over the national champion team, Holy Cross.

Beta Beta Beta

Officers: Charles Bauer, Treasurer; Niel Squillante, President; Anthony D'Amato, Vice-President; John Rhoder, Secretary.

This year, in keeping with its tradition of providing its members with a broad range of scholastic and social activities, the Galen Society gained entrance into the national biology fraternity Beta Beta Beta. Formally recognized as a charter member of this fraternity, the society now insists on being referred to as Beta Beta Beta. The admission of the club into this organization has given the representatives in particular, and Iona in general, greater prestige as a group devoted to the pursuit of biology and its related fields.

The society offers to its members a wide range of activities designed to increase interest and knowledge of the area of biology. Sponsoring lectures and discussions by known authorities concerning various aspects of this subject, the club contributed to its position as an important campus society. It was founded in 1952 to further Catholic principles in the physical sciences and to aid majors in gaining admission to medical, dental, and graduate schools. The success of the organization has been recognized in its effectiveness to provide its members with a clearer understanding of the role of the biology major and the opportunities offered to him in the technologically-minded world in which he finds himself.

Chemical Society

The Iona Chemical Society, as a chapter of the student affiliates of the American Chemical Society, was founded for students in the science division who intend to major in chemistry. In its third year of existence, the Iona College Mathematics Society attempted to fulfill its constitutional aim of promoting an interest in Mathematics among the students in attendance at Iona College. It did so by fostering a co-curricular study of Mathematics in its relation to the sciences, the arts, and the humanities. The club afforded the means to develop mathematical knowledge to a beneficial and practical end by presenting informative lecturers and films, sponsoring field trips, and encouraging student participation in projects of interest to the society.

In addition to lectures and discussions on various mathematical topics, problems, and ideas, this year saw the publication of the first Mathematical Journal, which contained articles from each of the club's members. The club also undertook construction of geometrical figures which were displayed on campus and co-sponsored the Third Annual DaVinci Science Council Dance, and the annual Science Division Dinner.

The Iona College student section of the American Institute of Physics seeks to instill a deeper understanding of physics in its members by presenting student lectures, sponsoring field trips to various scientific centers, hosting guest lectures, and showing films of technical interest. The society also tries to promote unity among the sciences by joint activities with the other science clubs on campus. Its overriding objective is the molding of Christian scientists.

Some of the student lectures delivered this year were: Using the Slide Rule, Underground Explosions, and Introduction to the Laser. The traditional field trip to Brookhaven Laboratories was among the various trips sponsored by the club. Films and guest lecturers rounded out the program.

The club's active participation and support of the Da Vinci Science Council's dance, Christmas in Manhattan, aided in making the affair the success that it was.

The Henry M. Ryan Accounting Club is the business and social organization for accounting students at Iona. Although the core curriculum of Iona provides each accounting major with a thorough background in the intricacies of theoretical accounting, technical proficiency alone does not fulfill all the requirements of the professional accountant. Accordingly, the club arranged for a variety of distinguished guest speakers including Mr. Seymour I. Friedman, District Director of the Internal Revenue Service in New York, and Mr. George J. Penick, U.S.A.F. Chief of Contract Audits Division, and an authority on pricing.

In addition, the club subsidizes the Accounting Bulletin, and has organized a committee to trace the history of the club. Social functions, such as the Easter Dance and the annual Business Division Dance, were also sponsored.

Finance Club

Realizing the inability of any curriculum to fully prepare the future graduate for the business world, the Finance Club has initiated a program designed to overcome these functional shortcomings. A program of guest speakers, businessmen's lunches, and field trips to large industries in the Metropolitan area has given the student the opportunity to meet with men prominent in their respective fields, and to become more aware of what will be expected of them by future employers.

The club also sponsored various events of social and cultural interest, to foster appreciation of art and music, including guest speakers, who discussed aspects of these; and a visit to Lincoln Center. By expanding interest into areas that might have been neglected, the Club hopes to make its members both more interested and more interesting.

Marketing Club

The Marketing Club of Iona College provides its membership with the opportunity to further their knowledge in the techniques of modern business. Through special lectures and special projects the members have become better acquainted with the problems existing in Sales, Advertising, Marketing Research, Retailing, and Marketing Management.

During the past year the club has increased its scope to include social as well as business activities. The First Annual Marketing Club Dance was held in the Fall. The club also co-sponsored the Annual Business Division Dance, and held a picnic at the end of the year for its members.

Special projects of the club included on campus product promotions, product sampling, and several marketing research studies. Two members of the club were invited to attend the Annual Retailing Conference sponsored by New York University. Another member attended the 14th Annual Inside Advertising-Marketing Week sponsored by The Advertising Club of New York.

The club's officers and moderator endeavored to stimulate the membership's desire to know more about the practical side of Marketing and related fields in order that they may have a more realistic viewpoint in seeking jobs in the future.

The Literary Society is a clique of campus "intellectuals" who attempt to encourage an interest in the creative arts within the body of undergraduates.

With primary emphasis on audio-visual presentation, the society usually sponsors films and lectures in the general field of literature and conducts discussions of historical and current literary movements. This year, however, the society was a virtual nonentity, for President Aidan Mooney and his cohorts did not deign to bestow the fruits of their organizational and creative genius on the student body.

One of the more cultured organizations on campus, the Classical Society has unfortunately received very little recognition from the students at Iona. The club, composed of a small band of dedicated members, was one of the less active organizations on campus this year. The highlight of its productivity was the presentation of Racine's Phaedre. However, the play was received by the student body in the same vein in which it was offered by the society. In addition to this effort, the club also sponsored several lectures by various members of the faculty on related topics of the classical world. In its desire to present Iona as a well-balanced Liberal Arts College, the society has realized its goal through the outstanding and important projects which it has presented to the students.

St. Thomas More Political Science Forum

The St. Thomas More Political Science Forum is a campus society designed to provide its members and interested spectators alike with a greater comprehension of the world of politics and history. In its efforts to afford a clearer understanding of the reasons for the emergence of a new state in Africa, the recognition of Red China by France, or the role of the President as a world peacemaker, the organization sponsored a series of lectures and discussions by distinguished representatives dealing with their respective concerns. In its position as an extension of the history department the club gave its members a wide scope of national and international affairs. One of its many lectures was given by Mr. George Fieschi, Deputy Consul of France. He discussed the present foreign policy of France in connection with its recognition of Red China. The effectiveness of this discussion was realized by the generally favorable comments received by the Society from those who had been present concerning their better understanding of the attitude of France in the world today.

The Forum realizes that the teaching of history cannot end in the classroom. For those interested in history as a major and even for those interested in a greater degree of knowledge of their country and the position it holds, a classroom lecture is far from adequate. Thus the existence of a society devoted to extracurricular lectures is of great value. The opinions and the information given by the various lecturers are of great assistance in understanding the changing society in which one lives. The success of the Forum has been its realization of its responsibility to provide intelligent comprehension of the national and international politics. With a tradition of such accomplishments, the Forum continues to improve its methods of realizing this goal.

The Pre-Legal Guild makes accessible to the student the means of attaining the knowledge necessary for the stimulation of an interest in the law. This year the practice of sponsoring lectures and discussions was put to adequate use. Guests from the teaching and legal professions, as well as prominent businessmen spoke before the club on such topics as The Future of the Legal Profession in America, and The Benefit of a Financial Background in Law. Several of the lectures were taped for the Iona Magazine of the Air.

Innovation played a significant role in this year's activities. An information service was compiled to afford students with use of circulars and catalogues of various law schools. In recognition of the need for forceful and concise expression in the legal field, a Pre-Legal Bulletin was published for distribution to the entire college. The First Annual Guild Dinner, held in the spring, concluded the school year.

Departing from its usually diversified field of endeavors, this year the Keenan Philosophy Club presented for its members a deeper examination of the philosophy of John Dewey. This decision was made to give the club a greater realization as an intellectual organ of philosophy. The topics covered by the meetings included Esthetics Theory in John Dewey, Modern Art and Esthetic Theory, and John Dewey and Self Realization. The inclusion of these subjects provided the members with a greater understanding of a particular philosopher. With the attaining of this goal the club proved itself as an effective medium of culture and education for members and faculty alike.

The Iona College Rifle and Pistol Club is among one of the newest organizations on campus. It was founded two years ago and received Student Council recognition late in 1962. Since that time the club has competed in numerous matches with neighboring colleges and universities. The Iona Rifle Men are recognized by the National Rifle Association and the Federal Government, the latter furnishing a generous amount of aid.

Because of the limited amount of space on campus, the Rifle Men do not yet have their own shooting range. However, the New Rochelle Armory has kindly permitted the club the use of their facilities on a yearly basis. Despite their neophyte status and some rigorous competition, the Iona Rifle Men have already gained recognition for their merit.

The Chess Club seeks to promote at Iona an appreciation of the intricate and pleasurable pastime that is chess. It conducted a series of lectures on general rules, and on some of the finer techniques, featuring club members who are especially proficient in the game, and a roster of visitors equally skillful. A new demonstration board proved an extremely valuable visual aid.

A chess tournament limited to interested Iona students was held, thus giving players an opportunity to increase their skills while competing with players of comparable ability.

In addition, several exhibition matches were held during the year, in which members of the club's team engaged teams from other colleges and chess clubs in the area.

Corinthian Sailing Club

Now in its second year, the Corinthian Sailing Club has become one of the most popular extra-curricular activities here at Iona. As a member of the Middle Atlantic Intercollegiate Sailing Association the Corinthians achieved many victories in the past season, and gained the distinction of defeating at least once, all the schools it competed against.

The fostering of sportsmanship and the finer points of sailboat racing are the club's major objectives. Weekly meetings consisting of technical instruction and racing hints highlighted the Sailing Club's academic calendar. The summit of the Corinthian's activities was reached this year when the Iona contingent was chosen to represent M.A.I.S.A. at the Ohio State University National Invitational Regatta in April. This is a great honor for Iona and the Corinthians since they were chosen from some of the thirty-eight best colleges and universities sailing competitively along the Eastern seaboard. The Sailing Club is looking forward to greater seasons, increased student support, and perhaps establishment as a varsity sport on the Iona athletic scene.

Since it was first established three years ago, the program has successfully represented all phases of college life at Iona, both to the students and alumni of the school, and to the members of the community at large. It accomplishes this through broadcasts of news, lectures, debates, music, and drama selections emanating from the Iona campus.

Basketball

The 1963-1964 season was one of many ups and few downs for Jim McDermott's varsity basketball squad. The Gael cagers narrowly missed a post-season tournament bid, while compiling the best won-lost record in the Metropolitan area, a mark of 15-5. Highlighting their impressive overall performance was the Gaels' sweeping of the Westchester Holiday Tourney at White Plains, with a thrilling comeback victory over a favored Boston University quintet in the finale. Also of special significance were the McDermottmen's twin triumphs in New York's sports showcase, Madison Square Garden—decisive defeats of "name" contingents from Massachusetts and Niagara.

Spearhead of the Gaels' court attack was lanky junior Warren "Joe" Isaac. The sharp-shooting forward, among the nation's major college rebounding leaders, and Iona's foremost scorer with a 22 point average, earned recognition as the Most Valuable Player in the Westchester Holiday Tourney, and gained a first-string berth on the star-studded All-Met team at season's end.

Iona's other All-Met representative, senior center George Jonic, copped second-string honors on the "dream team." The red-headed co-captain proved to be "Mr. Clutch," as he time and again delivered the key play to spark the team to victory. His outstanding twenty-one point effort against Niagara was the prime factor in the Gaels taking this important Garden clash.

The third member of the front-court trio, which established Iona as one of the top rebounding clubs in the country, was Marty Conlon. The 6′6″ senior, pairing with Isaac to give the Gaels a potent one-two scoring punch, sported a 14 point average. Marty backed Joe's thirty-five point showing with twenty-seven tallies of his own, as the Gaels outshone Massachusetts in their other Garden appearance.

Providing balance in the backcourt were the starting guards, senior co-captain George Mannion and soph Tom Qualter. The former's two-handed shooting from the outside took much of the scoring pressure off the men up front, while Qualter's deft ability to drive with the ball kept the defense honest and gave the forwards shooting room.

The success enjoyed by the basketball Gaels this season must be attributed to the entire squad, for the men who backed the first-stringers played no small role in coach McDermott's plans.

Senior John Holland, transfer Augie Kauffman, and soph Rick Polhemus contributed timely boardwork in spelling the starting front-court men. The latter pair will be returning next year and should be key factors in the Gaels' 1964-1965 campaign.

Frequently used as substitutes in the back-court were Jack Keating, Jim Ahrens, and Ed Curtin. Keating, a junior, and the fastest of the trio, turned in a number of excellent defensive efforts. Ahrens and Curtin, used more sparingly as sophs, at times flashed promise of development into fine floor generals.

John Stenson, a soph hampered most of the season by injuries, Hank DeCillia, and Jim Griffin saw little action but gained experience which should enhance their value to the Gaels in the future.

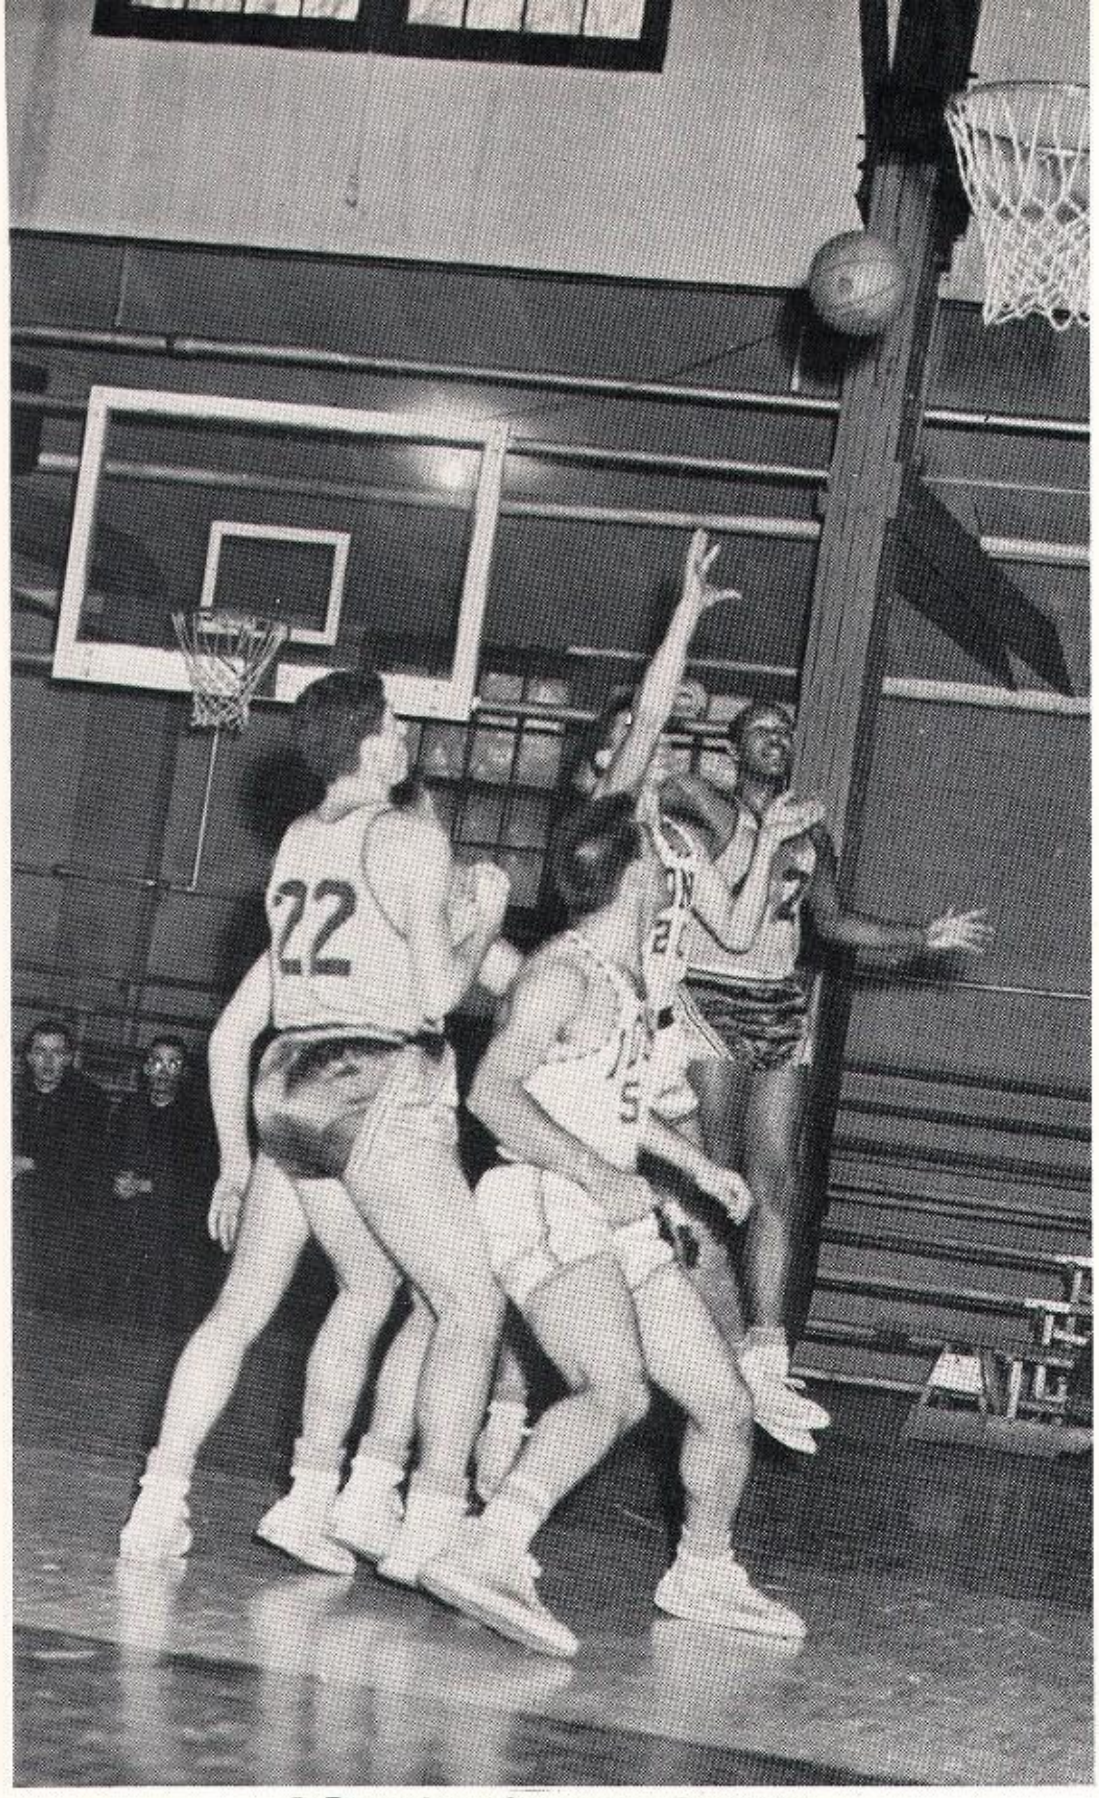
Frosh Basketball

Mr. Arthur Wilkins
Coach

In a pre-season interview, frosh basketball coach Artie Wilkins expressed the belief that his team would compile a winning record over the 1963-1964 term. He felt the yearling squad would experience difficulty in the early vacation-interrupted part of the schedule, but would bounce back in the latter half to top the .500 peak. The cage mentor's forecast was right on target!

From the December 2nd opener to February 4 the junior Gaels had their court routine disrupted by both the Christmas layoff and January semester finals. As a result, they were able to post over the nine game period only a mediocre 4-5 mark. But with a steady diet of competition thereafter, coach Wilkins' charges proved their leader an able prognosticator as they boosted their record to 10-8 with a closing spurt.

This rookie Gael contingent could be tabbed as being short on height but long on speed and hustle. Particularly outstanding was the play of front-courtmen Kevin McCulloch and Bob LaRusso. Both displayed fine shooting ability, Mac from his center slot around the key, and Bob from either corner, handled themselves more than adequately under the boards. Also regarded as a promising varsity prospect is Ken LaPolla, who flashed fine defensive form and at times supplied solid offensive punch from his backcourt position.



LaRusso shoots from cramped quarters.

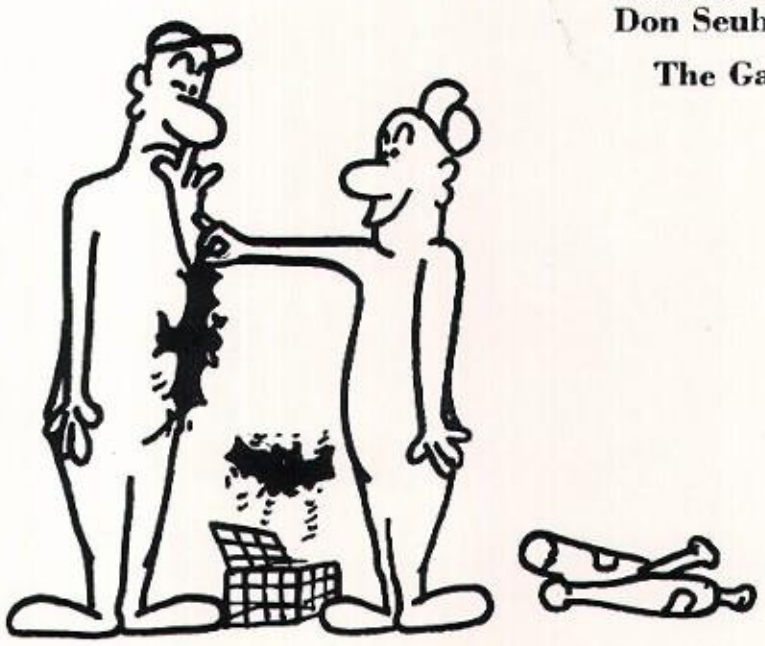
Baseball

Mr. Arthur Wilkins
Coach



With former head coach Jim McDermott confining his efforts to his duties as Athletic Director and varsity basketball mentor, Artie Wilkins took over last fall as the man at the helm of Iona's diamond representatives. Based on the 1963 spring season and last fall's brief showing, it appears the "Ol' Perfesser" of the Gael nine has inherited a squad capable of contending with the best in the tough Met Conference in 1964. Having had just two starters claimed by graduation, All-Met outfielder Frank Kotraba and first-sacker Kevin Morgan, the club should be well-balanced with experience and youth.

Possibly the most important of the Gaels' assets will be their outstanding pitching staff. Blessed with a strong front line and excellent depth, the mound corps is headed by an All-Met selection, senior Matty Maher. Righties Jack O'Keefe, a senior, and junior Jim McCullough will team with the crafty southpaw, and either Jack Kelly or Bob Dalton, both senior lefties, could move up to fill the fourth slot in the starting rotation. Backing this crew in the bullpen will be soph righthanders Don Seubert and Bob Kelly, and junior Richie Roos.

The Gaels' inner defense seems tight with three vets already secure in their positions. Senior Mike Angelastro, All-Met Bob Halleck, and junior Bob DeMichiel will hold down second, short, and third, respectively. Senior John Waibel will get first shot at nailing down the first base spot vacated by Morgan. In reserve are Augie Alifante and George Ivers.

The outfield, anchored by senior centerfielder John Groh, will lean more toward an accent on youth. Flanking the veteran Groh were junior Jack Keating and soph Jim Ahrens, with junior Eric Lightfoot and sophs Jim Favier, Tom DeLita, and Dennis Flood providing reserve strength.

Junior Mike Lynch opened as top backstop, with soph Lou Ventresca in reserve, but more depth was needed here to lighten this duo's burden.

TRACK

The track season of 1963-1964 will indeed be a memorable one for Iona College. In previous seasons, Gael Success has been limited to the C.T.C. Championships, but this year was a new chapter in Iona track History, as the Gaels displayed their growing talents in many meets, both home and away.

In local championships, Iona won the C.T.C. Championships for the second consecutive year and placed fifth in the Metropolitan Championships, scoring an all-time Iona high of seventeen points.

The best of Iona's teams is the two mile relay which has, as of this writing, recorded the third fastest time in the East, and is among the fastest in the nation. This team of Mike Glynn, Jim Zeitler, Rich Dugan and Bob Budwick upset a favored Seton Hall team in the Millrose Games, where they ran 7:32:8. This performance enabled the team to be invited to meets previously out of Iona's class, in such cities as Baltimore, Boston and Philadelphia.

Also performing well throughout the season was the Gael mile relay team. Running with Tom Cracovia, Phil Meehan, John Love and Harry Kappes, the team ran its best race in the New York Athletic Club Games, when it was clocked in 3:21.3. Tom Cracovia distinguished himself throughout the season by continually proving that he is one of the fastest and most consistent lead-off men in this event, being timed in better than 50.5 seconds, three times.

The two most significant individual performers for the Gael trackmen are sophs, Bob Budwick and Rich Dugan. Budwick became the Met 1000 yards champion as he ran a record-breaking 2:12.8; and Dugan missed being the Met mile champion by a step as he was edged by Seton Hall's George Germann. His time of 4:15.9 makes him the 8th best miler in the East. Both men have run the half in better than 1:52.

The spring season gave the Gael sprinters a chance to display their talents. Running in the big outdoor meets, namely the Queens-Iona Carnival, the Penn Relays, and the Quantico Relays, men such as Rich Kenney, John Ertlmaier, Damian FitzRoy, John McGilchrist, Ed Reyman and Joe Niola distinguished themselves. This season has proven to be the most successful for Iona; and the Gael mentor, Howie Bulger, and moderator Bro. Doyle are content with the victories, but are looking for even more next year. The Gael's are blessed with having a young team, but unfortunately three key legs will be lost to graduation: Tom Cracovia, John McGilchrist and Harry Kappes.

Soph Joe MacMahon leads the field in two mile relay at Indoor Metropolitan Championships.

Cross-Country

Cross-Country had never been a forte in Iona's track make up, never that is, until this year. With the addition of last year's stalwart freshmen to the varsity, the Gael harriers had one of the better teams in the metropolitan area.

Joining the ranks of junior greats Mike Walsh and Pete Hickey, were Ray Gannon, Rich Dugan, Jim Perrone, Jim Harshbarger, Jim Golbin and Mike Glynn. These graduates of last year's unbeaten frosh squad added the necessary punch lacking in the varsity. Even though this year proved to be the varsity's most successful, there were a few disappointments as the team members were erratic and did not completely fulfill their potential. However, this can be attributed to inexperience, since the team is composed solely of sophomores and juniors.

In the course of the season, the Gaels successfully defended their MECAA title; subdued CCNY in its defense of its CTC crown; placed a poor fifth in the Metropolitan Championships; copped the third position in the IC4A College division; and defeated eight schools in dual meet competition while only losing to four.

Outstanding for Iona were two sophs, Ray Gannon and Rich Dugan. Gannon set a new school mark of 26:50 for the five mile grind and was closely followed by Dugan. Filling out the first five places were Walsh, Perrone and Hickey. The team will remain intact next year so Coach Bulger and moderator Bro. Doyle will be expecting even greater things from these harriers.

Bowling

With the return of four experienced keglers and the addition of three promising freshmen to the squad, the Iona College Bowling Team was a strong favorite to capture the championship of the Eastern Intercollegiate Bowling Conference.

Led by captain Ray Bosso, and with competent assistance from Sal DiPietro, George Krumenacker, George Ivers, Art McMahon, Tony D'Eufemia, and Jim Ihlen, Iona occupied the first place slot for the first quarter of the season.

In mid-season, key losses to N.Y.U. and Fordham placed the Gaels in second place behind the Rams. However, the Gaels have always kept within striking distance of Fordham, and at this writing, are just a meagre two games off the pace.

Crew

In the beginning of the year the Iona varsity Crew entered collegiate competition under a seeming handicap, for it had lost four of its oarsmen. Their seats were taken over by members of last year's winning frosh Crew, however, and in the fullness of time it has developed into a fine team.

The junior varsity crew managed to stay on a par with the varsity and displayed effectiveness commensurate with its class.

The difficulties involved in the recruitment and training of nascent galley slaves has slowed down the progress of the freshman Crew. At the time of this writing no major meets have been held for the neophytes, but their condition has been described as satisfactory.

Under the coaching of John McHugh, formerly of Vesper Boat Club and Loyola of Los Angeles, who has introduced a new style of rowing, the varsity crew is faced with the most rugged schedule of its short existence, and will compete against some of the best crews in the nation. Regattas entered include the Hughes Cup (April 4), the Grimaldi Cup (April 11), the President's Cup (April 25); the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Rowing Championship (May 2), and finally the small college championship, the Dad Vail Regatta (May 9).

Golf

Iona's varsity golfers have continued the tradition for which they are known to be tops in the metropolitan area. They outdistanced all competition in the MECAA tournament held in Albany, and became the first school ever to win this golf title for three consecutive years. Some outstanding individual performances marked this third victory.

Dick Stanley's personal tally of 73 enabled him to finish the day's play as low medalist. This effort caused Stanley to succeed teammate Dom Desio who had copped tourney honors in each of the past two seasons. Once again Desio displayed Championship form but his round of 75 was only good enough for third place. The two remaining members of the Gael quartet, Joe Smith and Kenny Swetz, were not far behind their front running-mates. Smith's fine 77 final left him just two points shy of the top trio, only four strokes off Stanley's lead. Swetz's effort of 81 put him out of reach of the upper bracket, but he too was not far off the lead.

Their composite score of 306 was only one score off their previous year's total of 305 which is also the tournament record.

In the E.C.A.C. Tourney at Trenton, the Gael linksmen were something of a disappointment. The best that the team could do was an individual tie for tenth place on the part of Dick Stanley. The team as a whole finished out of the money. All things taken into consideration however, the Iona duffers have a promising Spring before them.

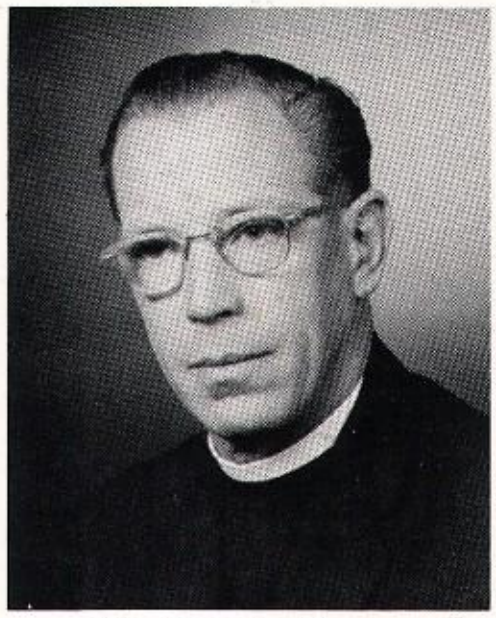
Tennis



Bro. Alexander Thomas
Moderator

Although tennis is not "the sport" on campus, the racquet squad has managed to compile one of the best records of any varsity team. In the past three years the Gael racquet men have suffered only six losses as compared to twenty-two victories and have won the M.E.C.C.A. tournament twice.

This year the club is looking to improve their previous records with thoughts of an undefeated season. Returning from last year are Frank Ringle and Kevin Duff. Ringle, playing first singles in the 1963 season, compiled a 9-2 overall record and a 7-1 league record. Duff, another junior, won all of his league matches and encountered only one setback in competition outside of the league. Two promising sophomores on the team are Pete Hadhazy and Randy Palmer, who finished first and second in the M.E.C.C.A. freshmen tournament. Rounding out the team is Dick Pratt, a transfer student from Villanova.

Brother Thomas, the coach, anticipates another winning season despite the fact that the team does not have much experience in collegiate competition. However, since the team overcame this obstacle in the past, they should do the same in the future.
